

Senior Airman Lauren Ooghe

Integrated Avionics Specialist

Senior Airman Lauren Ooghe is an Integrated Avionics Journeyman for the F-22 Raptor Demonstration Team and a member of the 1st Fighter Wing. As an avionics specialist, she is responsible for ensuring the aircraft's RADAR, communication, electrical, environmental, and navigational systems are operational.

She represents Air Combat Command, the United States Air Force, and the Department of Defense at more than 20 air shows annually. Her mission is to ensure the demonstration team has a quality aircraft available to perform a safe demonstration so that millions of spectators can see the F-22's air superiority.

Ooghe enlisted in the Air Force in February 2018. She is from Bedford, Pennsylvania and graduated from Bedford High School. Growing up, she played basketball, soccer, tennis, and softball. In her free time, Ooghe enjoys weight-lifting, traveling, playing instruments, and spending time with friends.

Assignments

- 2017 – Present: F-22 Avionics Journeyman, Joint Base Langley-Eustis, VA.