

SMALL CLAIMS IN VIRGINIA

OVERVIEW

Small Claims Court (SCC) is a division of the General District Courts for the Counties and independent cities of Virginia. SCC jurisdiction is limited to civil cases in which the plaintiff is seeking a money judgment or recovery of personal property valued up to $5,000.

In trials before the small claims court, the judge conducts the trial in an informal manner. The judge has the discretion to admit all non-privileged relevant evidence. Attorneys are typically not allowed in SCC. If an attorney appears to represent a client, the judge will not hear the case, but require it to be heard at General District Court. Once a case is filed it typically takes at least 21 days for the paperwork to be finalized. SCC is held once per week (for Hampton it is on Thursdays) and there is a limited docket. For example, if the docket has a limit of seven cases, once the seven spots are filled, a ready case can only be scheduled for the next available spot.

A successful plaintiff in a civil case will typically be awarded a money judgment as compensation for the defendant's wrongful act. The plaintiff is never assured of actually receiving the money, however, since the judgment can only be enforced out of property belonging to the defendant. A defendant in a civil case is not subject to criminal sanctions for failing to pay.

PREPARING TO FILE SUIT

It is essential in filing suit that the plaintiff knows the defendant's current address. Businesses that are trading under an assumed name are required by law to file a fictitious name statement in the clerk's office of the local circuit court.

For example, if Jane Roe owns a corporation called Roe Corporation that is doing business under the name "Roe Jewelry," a suit would be brought against "Roe Corporation trading as Roe Jewelry." The fictitious name statement would indicate that Roe Corporation owned "Roe Jewelry" and would list an address for the corporation, as "Roe Corporation, c/o Jane Roe, 102 Park Street, Roeville, Virginia."

If the defendant is a corporation, a simple way to locate the address is to call the registered agent division of the State Corporation Commission in Richmond, (804) 371-9967. That office will provide the name and address of the corporation's registered agent. The address needed to bring suit against the corporation is, for example, "XYZ Corp., c/o John Doe, Registered Agent, 1402 Fish Lane, Fishtown, Virginia."

If the defendant is an individual and the home address cannot be located, a work address will suffice, although a home address is preferable.

FILING SUIT

The plaintiff will be asked to fill out a civil warrant or a civil summons form which contains space for the details of your claim. If the plaintiff is seeking only a money judgment, he or she should prepare and file a warrant in debt. If the plaintiff is seeking to obtain possession of specific personal property, the plaintiff should prepare and file a warrant in detinue. The plaintiff will need to bring to the clerk the following:

1. The name of the defendant;
2. The current address of the defendant;
3. The amount of the plaintiff's claim;
4. The basis of the claim; and
5. Sufficient funds to pay the filing fee and any sheriff's fee for serving the warrant.

The amount required may vary, so you may want to inquire with the court about the cost. The fees must be paid in cash, by certified check, or by money order. If you are preparing a civil warrant, you should make two extra copies, one to keep for your own records and one to mail to the defendant, in addition to the number of copies requested by the clerk for processing by the court.

In preparing a warrant in debt, the claim must specify a dollar amount and the reason for the claim. In preparing a warrant in detinue, the plaintiff must describe the specific property being sought, state its value, and state the basis of the claim for possession of the property.

One additional step is taken by careful plaintiffs. A copy of the civil warrant is sent by first-class mail by the plaintiff to the defendant at least ten (10) days before the date when the plaintiff and defendant are to come to court for their first appearance in the dispute. Further, the plaintiff should fill out a Certificate of Mailing, which is either delivered to the judge at the trial or delivered to the clerk's office before the date of the trial. Otherwise, the plaintiff cannot get judgment on the trial date if the defendant fails to come to court (which happens frequently), and the case will be continued until the required ten-day notice has been given.

SERVICE OF PROCESS

After the clerk completes the clerk's portion of the civil warrant prepared by the plaintiff, these papers are sent to the sheriff of the county or city where the defendant is located or the plaintiff may utilize a private process server to serve the papers on the defendant. This is known as service of process.

Without service of process having been made, the court cannot try the case. If you are suing a corporation, an out-of-state defendant, or if service of process cannot be made by the deputy sheriff or private process server, you should contact the clerk to inquire as to how service of process may be issued and what fees (if any) are involved.

If the only available address of the defendant is a work address, the civil warrant must be served in person. Sometimes, it can be difficult for a deputy sheriff or private process server to locate someone at work, and the sheriff's department or private process server will only make a limited number of attempts to serve process before returning the civil warrant or summons to the court unserved.

RETURN OF THE WARRANT

The civil warrant will include a specific date and time when the defendant and the plaintiff are to come to court for their trial concerning their dispute. This date is sometimes called the "return date." All of the cases scheduled for trial on the same date may require the parties to appear at the same time. However, the cases will be called one at a time, and the parties will approach the judge concerning their case.

If the civil warrant was served on the defendant in a legally correct way and he or she fails to appear on the return date, a "default judgment" may be entered against the defendant. In this situation, the court will enter a judgment for the plaintiff on the trial date based on evidence from the plaintiff supporting the claim. The defendant has lost the case.

If the civil warrant was served by "posting" (attaching) the civil warrant to the front door of the defendant's residence, an additional step is required before default judgment will be entered. The plaintiff must certify to the court that at least ten days before the entry of default judgment, the plaintiff mailed to the defendant at his or her residence, by ordinary first-class mail, a copy of the civil warrant. A form Certificate, form DC-413, may be used for this purpose. Otherwise, the case will be continued, and the plaintiff must return to court for the default judgment after the ten-day period has elapsed.

If the plaintiff fails to appear in court, the defendant may ask the judge to decide the case in the defendant's favor.

The defendant has the right to remove the case to the general district court by completing the Removal to General District Court form on the back of the civil warrant and giving it to the clerk or judge. This notice must be filed before the judge decides the case.

TRIAL PROCEDURES

Generally, all parties represent themselves in actions before the small claims court.

If a party wishes to call witnesses besides himself, he or she should consider having them served with a subpoena, even if the witness has willingly agreed to appear at the trial or is a defendant. If the witness has received the subpoena at least five days before trial and if his or her testimony is important to the case, the judge will usually continue the case until a later date (if requested) should the witness not appear. Otherwise, the trial usually will proceed without that witness.

To subpoena a witness, the party must file a Request for Witness Subpoena, form DC-325, in the Small Claims Division of the clerk's office at least 10 days before the trial. This requirement is made so that the witness can receive the subpoena at least five days before trial as required by law. The party will need to give the name and current home address of the prospective witness.

It is important always to notify your witnesses (except the other party) before they receive their subpoenas. Witnesses taken by surprise may be angered, and less willing to be of use in court. Explain to a witness why you need his or her testimony and try to convince the witness to come willingly. Any party is entitled to subpoena any witness, willing or not, but a willing witness will be more helpful in court.

You will be required to pay an additional sheriff's fee for the service of any subpoenas for witnesses.

TRIAL

Each case is tried in an informal manner. Both plaintiff and defendant will be given an opportunity to introduce evidence, ask questions of the witnesses, and to explain to the judge why the judge should enter judgment in his favor. While the judge has the discretion to admit evidence of probative value even if it does not comply with all of the legal requirements, he may not allow witnesses to testify until they have been sworn and he may not consider "privileged communications"

(statements by certain people barred by law from being used in a trial).

JUDGMENT IS ENTERED

At the end of the case, the judge will either enter judgment for the plaintiff or the defendant. If the judgment is for the plaintiff, it may be the amount sought by the plaintiff, or it may be less. The person who has the burden of proof must not only prove that he or she is entitled to win the case, but must prove the amount due. Form DC-475, Civil Appeal Notice, is used for filing an appeal. The appeal will be tried in circuit court in a formal manner strictly following all of the rules of evidence and procedure, and in which lawyers usually represent the parties.

APPEALS

So long as the amount in controversy exceeds $50, either the plaintiff or the defendant has a right to appeal any decision of the general district court to the circuit court, the next highest court in the Virginia system. After a party notes an appeal, which is done usually at the end of the trial but must be done within ten days after the entry of judgment, the judge will set an appeal bond of a certain amount of money. Within 30 days after judgment is entered, an appealing party posts the required bond with the clerk of the court. In circuit court, a jury may be requested if the claim exceeds $100.

ENFORCING THE JUDGMENT

The judgment of the court is, in itself, nothing but an official statement in the court's records that the defendant, now also called the judgment debtor, owes the plaintiff, the judgment creditor, a certain amount of money with interest. The judgment must be enforced out of the assets of the defendant.

To enforce the collection of the judgment, the judgment creditor may contact the general district court clerk's office for additional information on court procedures to collect the judgment, including:

- Using a Summons to Answer Interrogatories for getting information about the defendant and his assets in order to use court collection procedures.
- Obtaining an Abstract of Judgment to take to circuit court for recording as a lien against real estate.
- Obtaining a Writ of Fieri Facias to have the judgment debtor's personal property sold at public auction to pay the judgment.

- Obtaining a Garnishment Summons to get payment from the judgment debtor's bank account or earnings.
